Winemaking

This white Burgundy comes from the village of Meursault, where the vines grow on three different parcels with calcareous soils. The vines range from 10 to 50 years old and benefit from the ideal conditions of this unique terroir. The grapes are hand-harvested and sorted on the table. Vinification and aging take place in Tronçais barrels, 10% of which are new. Bottling is done without fining or filtration.

Our tasting note

Intense golden yellow color, with aromas of vanilla, hazelnut, coconut, and honey, indicating barrel aging. Ripe apple, pear, and pineapple reveal the presence of Chardonnay. The wine is full-bodied and creamy. Juicy acidity and noticeable minerality create a beautiful balance and accompany the long finish.

Buisson-Charles

The Buisson-Charles estate covers a modest 6.3 hectares and has been cultivating parcels in the Meursault area for several generations. Its holdings also include crus from Volnay and Pommard, while its négociant activities encompass red wines from Corton and Chambertin, as well as white wines from Chassagne-Montrachet, Puligny-Montrachet, Chablis Premier Cru, Pouilly-Fuissé Premier Cru, and Corton-Charlemagne. The estate's old vines, ranging from 30 to 90 years of age, naturally produce low yields, resulting in highly concentrated wines with excellent aging potential after vinification and maturation. Catherine Buisson and her husband Patrick Essa have been managing the estate since 2001, and they are fortunate to have their son, Louis, return to the winery after completing his studies as an oenological engineer. There's no doubt that Louis will follow in his parents' footsteps in the years to come. The 2019 vintage marked a significant milestone as it was the first one he fully vinified on his own.
