Winemaking

The grapes originate from vineyards in Biancavilla (700-800m above sea level) and Belpasso, both located on the southern slopes of Mount Etna. The soils in Biancavilla, among the oldest in the region, are lighter in colour, promoting freshness and finesse. In contrast, the darker, more porous soils of Belpasso, rich in volcanic rock, lend the wine structure and a distinctive mineral character. The three grapes varieties are co-fermented and then matured in stainless steel tanks for five months.

Our tasting note

The wine reveals a delicate salmon-pink hue. On the nose, it offers a refined bouquet of pomegranate, grapefruit, elderflower and redcurrant. On the plate floral, notes of rose, petals unfold alongside ripe fruit, supported by a harmonious and elegant structure. The finish is round, fresh and pleasantly saline.

IDDA

The IDDA estate is a joint venture between the Gaja and Graci families. They own 20 hectares of vineyards situated at altitudes between 600 and 800 meters in the villages of Belpasso and Biancavilla. The grape varieties currently cultivated are Nerello Mascalese, Carricante and Grenache. Mount Etna, the highest active volcano in Europe, is a mountain formed several hundred thousand years ago by lava eruptions. The Sicilians attribute a feminine nature to Etna, which is why it is called IDDA, meaning "She" in Sicilian.
